Barracudas capture CVAL crown

Bouncing back from their loss to the Gilroy Gators, the Carmel Barracuda swimmers mounted an overwhelming attack on Sunday to regain the Coast Valley Aquatic League championship.

Trailing Gilroy by 57.5 points at the end of Saturday's competition, the Barracudas steadily advanced on the leaders, smashing one record after another until, finishing with record-breaking 15-18 Boys and Girls 200 free relays, they emerged leading second-place Gilroy by nearly 50 points. It was departing Head Coach Larry Challis' last CVAL meet, capping his Barracuda career which he began as an assistant coach in 1970.

Accepting the trophy from Gilroy Mayor Norman B. Goodrich, Challis praised the team's extraordinary efforts, noting that to a man the individual swimmers achieved lifetime bests in this, the most important meet of the year. "I could not have asked for anything more from any of you", said the elated coach to his team and assistant coaches Rich Holine, Chaco Mohler, and Diana Whitesides.

Brightest of the individual swim stars were Suzy Hermanson, who set league and team records winning the 13-14 girls 50 freestroke, 100 free and 100 backstroke, and Kathy Walthour, who achieved "AA" time in the 50 freestroke, setting league and team records in the 15-18 girls 50 free, 100 breaststroke and 100 backstroke.

Other league records were set by Tanna Franke, Bobby Walthour, Adam Sherburne, Kim Neill, Stacey Hicks, Nancy Parsons and the relay teams of Josh Hardy, Andrew White, Greg Falge, and Shane Pina; Suzy Hermanson, Beth Allard, Stacey Hicks, and Maureen Falge; Stacey, Pam Gayman, Maureen, and Suzy; and Gerri Brandley, Kathy Walthour, Nancy Parsons, and Kim Neill.

chamber chatter

BY JEANELLE KAMINSKE

The Robert Schwarz Memorial Park is a tiny corner by the Bank of America that has been set aside for use as a quiet resting place. The Robert Schwarz Memorial Fund contributes $125 each quarter toward the cost of maintenance, cleaning, watering, repairing and replacing the benches and plants. (Correction: the amount of $25 was printed in error last week.) The park is not for horses, dogs, motorcycles, or beer drinking. The amount of money available for its upkeep isn't adequate unless the people who enjoy it take care of it and leave it clean for the next visitors. Members of the Chamber of Commerce (who administer the fund) are seeking solutions to the maintenance problem. If you wish to offer your help, we will be delighted to hear from you. Call us at 659-4000.

Have you seen our new Chamber of Commerce "Fun in the Sun" sign at the Oak Building? Did you know that we get letters and calls from all over the United States requesting visitor information? If you have a business in Carmel Valley, and offer any product or service, come by our office and join the Chamber, and let us tell you how you can use our services to increase your business.

Lou Allaire of Allaire Insurance is a charter member of the Chamber. His office is in the Village Plaza Building at 9 Del Fino Place and he offers the entire spectrum of general insurance from life to livestock. (Did you know you could buy life insurance for your horse?) Lou and his wife Ruth came to live in Carmel Valley in 1947, and his office has been open since 1951. Ruth is a partner in R&M Originals, which makes floral arrangements for weddings, parties, Christmas and all special occasions. They have four children: Davette now living in Oregon; David who is a heavy equipment operator in Columbia, CA; Tom, who is spending the summer on an international student work experience program near Brussels; and Matt who is a senior at Carmel High.

Lou's hobbies include his airplane, a Cessna 140 built in 1947, back-packing and pulling weeds in his garden. His favorite Chamber project is beautification of the Village. He says, "People should appreciate the Valley more. It's the most beautiful place in the world to live. We should leave it occasionally so we can be reminded of the beauty that surrounds us here. We flew down to a little town neat Santa Barbara this weekend, and when we saw all that smog we were so glad to get home."

If you feel the way Lou does, join the Chamber and become part of a DO SOMETHING group. New members may join now for $15 for this year. Applications are available at the Chamber Office in the Oak Building in the Village. You need us and we need you. Let's get together.

Mark your calendar for our next monthly meeting at noon on the 25th of August. This luncheon meeting is at the Buckeye in the Village. See you there. Call 659-4000 for reservations before Tuesday.

Sanitary district bans new annexations

The Carmel Sanitary District acknowledged potential capacity problems with the passage of two ordinances affecting future service and lowered its tax rate to 25 cents during Monday's regular meeting.

The district board unanimously approved an ordinance banning further annexation because its sewage treatment plant is reaching maximum capacity. The board also approved an ordinance to halt new connections if certain conditions are met.

Plant capacity has been a source of discussion within the district nearly as long as the plant has been built. The current evaluation by David Kennedy, district engineer, places the rated capacity at 2.4 million gallons per day (mgd). The district has exceeded capacity seasonally, according to Max Drewien, general manager, and has found itself in violation of quality standards for discharge into Carmel Bay.

When 95 per cent of plant capacity is reached for 30 days and discharge standards are not met, the district will immediately prohibit new connections. In combination with the ordinance banning annexation the district feels this conditional moratorium on connections will buy it some time until plant capacity can be increased. Both ordinances were the subject of a public hearing last month. They will go into effect in seven days.

In accordance with the ordinances, the district voted to ask the Regional Water Quality Control Board to review its capacity and revise the rated capacity to 2.4 mgd.

The board also approved by resolution a $3,296,000 budget, $312,000 of which will be raised by a 25 cent property tax rate. The rate reflects a decrease of four cents from last year's rate.

Board member Ted Weller raised the only objection to the district budget. He wanted to keep the tax rate at 29 cents and accumulate funds for increasing plant capacity. He indicated that the district might well have to go to the taxpayers in the future for capital funds and it would be cheaper in the long run if the tax rate were not altered.

The district expects to receive $1,234,000 in various grant and fee revenues and has $1,750,000 in cash on hand, earmarked for increasing plant capacity.

Details for implementation of an areawide facilities plan project costing the district $325,000 (a grant will reimburse the cost) were worked out. The board will split income and expense on the project with the Pebble Beach Sanitary District based on its current general agreement and will ask the county to financially participate in the project as well.

A series of public agencies and community groups will be invited to participate in the project either on a policy or technical advisory basis. The board also limited to four the number of firms eligible for selection to perform the environmental impact statement (EIS).

Prior to passing the ordinance banning annexation (except in cases of declared health hazards), the board agreed to annex a portion of the Carmel River Inn property bordered on two sides by the district. But, the district limited the number of sewer hookups it would allow on the property. The property currently has 22 cottages all with septic tanks. Though the owners planned expansion of the units, the board voted to allow only the 22 units or their replacements to be hooked up. The board indicated, however, that the limitation is not permanent.

In other action the board voted to call for bids on a sewer cleaner estimated at $28,000 and amended an agreement on an access road in High Meadows.

School budget passed

The Carmel school board almost faced the problem of calling a public hearing and not having anyone show up. In fact, the board called three public hearings for last Wednesday, including final adoption of a $6.5 million budget.

The board stalled action on the public hearings by approving routine items until Gen. Ernest Easterbrook and Rich Hawkins walked in to form an audience.

Once faced by a "public," the board held hearings on, and routinely approved, the budget, a conflict of interest code and the cost of educating students from other districts, all in less than 30 minutes.

The district's final budget calls for a tax decrease of 33 cents and differs only by $8,495 with the publication budget adopted in July.

The final budget amounts to a 6.3 per cent increase over last year's budget, but will result in the lower tax rate of $2.1273 due to a 25 per cent increase in district valuation. Total district valuation is over $225 million.

Local taxes support 80 per cent of the budget with the remainder consisting of state (16 per cent), federal (2 per cent), and county funds (less than one per cent).

The board approved continuation of an interdistrict attendance program which allows students to attend districts they don't reside in, when special problems arise. Superintendant of schools, Harris Taylor explained to the board that the program is countywide and poses no financial burden to the district.

The board adopted a conflict of interest code to be presented to the county board of supervisors for review. The code designates which employes are subject to its provisions and what specific disclosures they must make. The code, once accepted by the county, will require annual financial disclosure statements from all designated employes.

In other action the board:

— approved bus routes for the coming school year with only one change, from last year's routes, an extension of the Big Sur run.

— cancelled its last meeting in August and set its next meeting for Sept. 8.

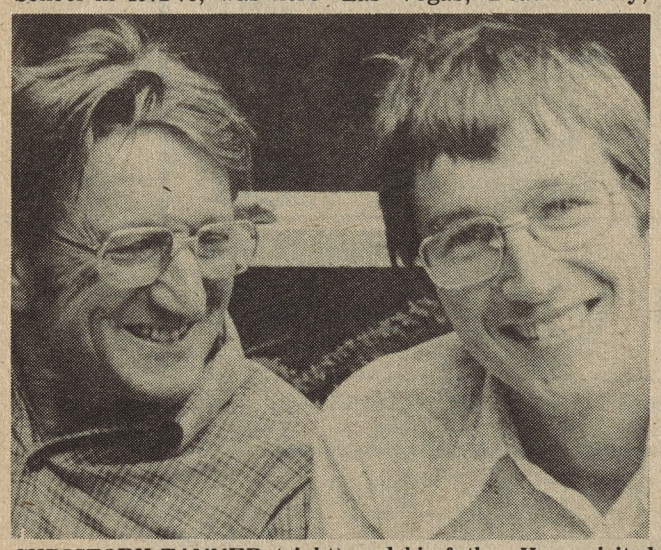

— passed a resolution asking the county for a routine transfer of funds for operation until the district's tax revenues are received in December.

Former exchange student remembers friends best

One of the nicest things about having been an exchange student with the American Field Service is to have friends in the United States says Christoph Tanner.

Cristoph, who was an exchange student from Switzerland at Carmel High School in 1972-73, was here visiting his former hosts, the William Camerons. His father, Hans, accompanied him on the trip.

It was his father's first trip to the United States. Besides visiting in Carmel, they have traveled to Los Angeles, visited the Grand Canyon, Las Vegas, Death Valley, Yosemite and some of the gold country.

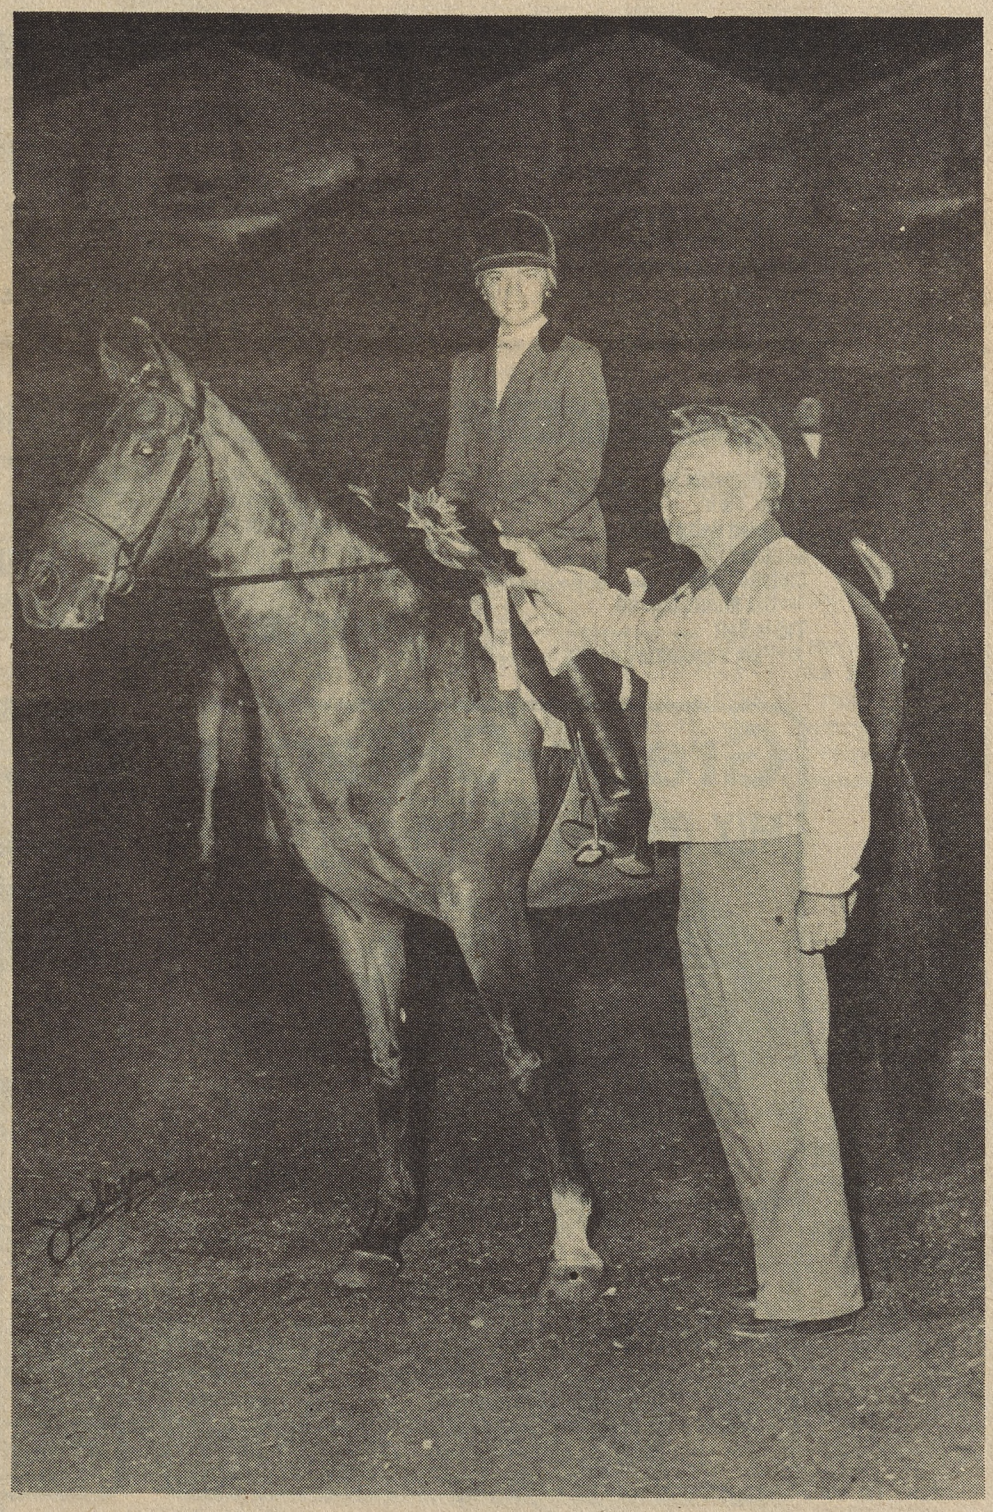

CHRISTOPH TANNER (right) and his father Hans visited Carmel recently from their home in Switzerland. Christoph was an exchange student at Carmel High School in 1972-73.

The older Tanner, who is a teacher like his son, has found the United States much like Switzerland, only bigger. He likes the friendliness and openness of the people and finds it easy to talk to people. He feels that the people are more closed in Switzerland.

Christoph feels that his experience as an exchange student didn't change him as a whole, but widened his horizons so that he could look at things more freely. "I'm more open to acceptance," he said, "and can more easily accept people as they are."

Before returning to Switzerland on Aug. 3, the Tanners were going to Madera to see a beekeeper there. Christoph explained that his father also keeps bees. They also planned to visit a farm in Salinas and enjoy the Carmel weather. Christoph said they would be happy with whatever it was, sunshine or fog.

CAROL HEILAND, age 11, of Carmel Valley, riding her horse, Tin Soldier, wins two first place ribbons, one in Tri-County Hunter Seat Equitation, 14 yrs. and under and the other in Hunter Seat Equitation, 11 yrs. and under at the Monterey Horse Show. In the picture she receives her first place ribbon from Joe Tulley of Carmel Valley. Carol is a seventh grader at Carmel Middle School. Her trainers are Riley Wilson and Marie Clinton of Laguna Seca Stables.

Eagle Scout award

Alex Rembert, who has been involved in scouting for over five years here and in the San Francisco Bay area, chose the memorable year of the Bicentennial in which to complete requirements for the top award for Boy Scouts — the rank of Eagle Scout.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rembert of Laurel Drive, Alex has served as patrol leader, senior patrol leader and junior assistant scout leader in Carmel Valley's Boy Scout Troop 127.

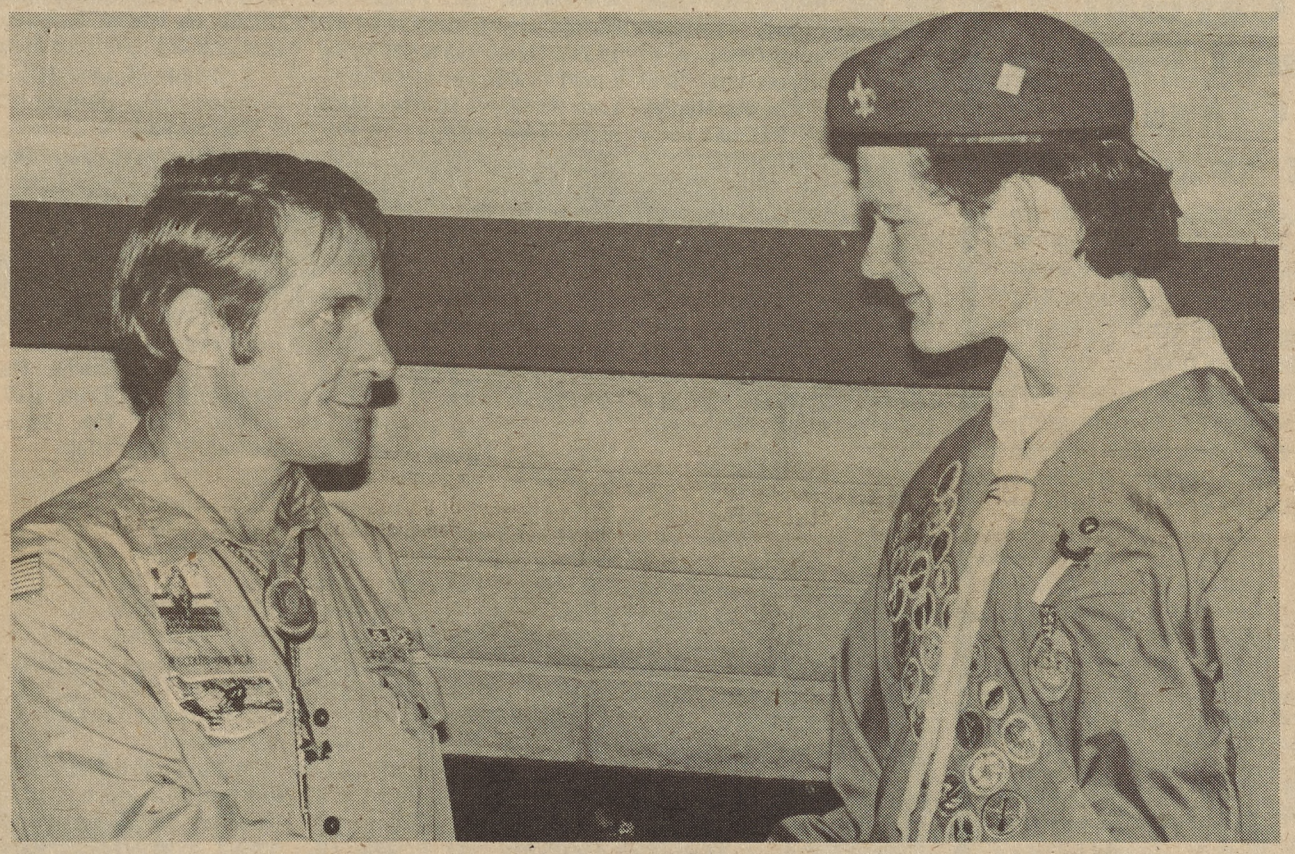

Other scout activities which contributed to the award included being boy representative to the Piedmont District Scout Council, a member of the Monterey Bay District training staff, and a member of the Order of the Arrow.

Each boy must plan and complete a community project in addition to other requirements to become an Eagle Scout. Alex organized a group of volunteer scouts who painted the lounge room inside the Carmel Valley Youth Center, painted the picnic tables and hauled rocks from the river to place around seedlings and paths. If you wonder how many trips it took from the river to the center to complete the project, just ask Mrs. Nancy Rembert (the Eagle's Mom) who provided station wagon transportation for the rocky project! Congratulations, Alex!

"Local 4-H Club members returned to Salinas by bus on Friday from a five-day meeting at the University of California at Davis," according to Marit Arana, scribe for the Buckeye Club.

"The delegates attending were Kathy Collins and Emily White who went to the beef project meetings; Mary Jane Reuter, who attended the junior leadership training sessions; and Marit Arana, who went to the veterinary science project meetings. The delegates will now be able to teach what they have learned to other Valley and county members.

Accompanying the group as chaperone was Mrs. Edward Arana of Robles Del Rio."

SCOUTMASTER HAROLD WAYMIRE of Carmel Valley's Boy Scout Troop 127 congratulates Alex Rembert on achieving the rank of Eagle Scout at a Troop Court of Honor.

Jaws of Life

A meaningful memorial for the late Jack Pooler has been established by his many friends who are sending contributions in his name to the "Jaws of Life Fund" at the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department.

The initial donation to this latest piece of life saving equipment used to extricate victims pinned in auto accidents was made in the spring by the Carmel Valley Women's Club.

Scientist honored

Burl B. Gray who with wife Shelia and children resides in Robinson Canyon was recently named the 1976 Martin F. Palmer distinguished scholar-in-residence in the Wichita State University department of logopedics.

The Valleyite is a senior staff scientist for the Human Resources Research Organization.

Funds for the residency were made available several years ago as a tribute to Palmer, founder of the Institute of Logopedics, and to bring new scholars to the campus.

Each resident scholar spends a two-month period at Wichita, working with the staff whill teaching one summer session course.

Gray, codeveloper of programmed learning strategies fot communicatively handicapped children, including the widely adopted Monterey Language Training Program, is also working with special education instruction programs in reading, arithmetic, sports and other learning skills.

He holds a doctorate in speech pathology from Southern Illinois University and has special training in psychology, experimental design and psycholinguistics from the University of Illinois.

Get well soon

A speedy recovery to Arthur Sherman, a patient at Eskaton Medical Center in Monterey. The recent surgery patient is the father of Paso Hondo resident, Roger Sherman, and although a resident of Pacific Grove, has so many friends and family members in the Valley that he seldom misses an opportunity to attend and support any local function.

Scarlett Road party

A benefit bridge and canasta party at the Scarlett Road home of Mrs. Nelson Miles (Bernice) Leoni has become a summer tradition for members of the sponsoring St. Dunstan's social group.

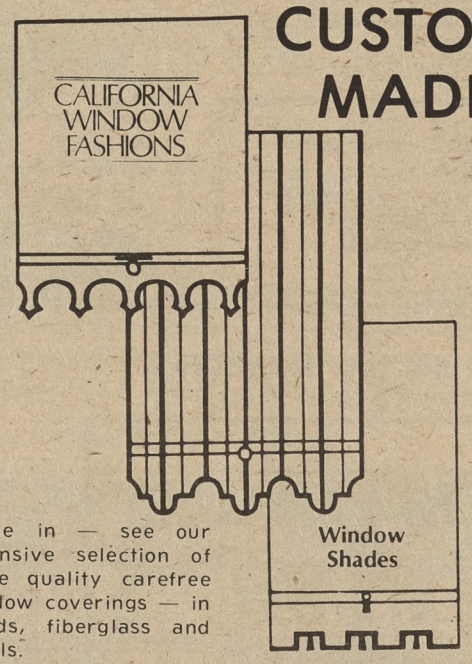

The extensive grounds and gardens, at their summer peak, put on an unusually beautiful show of color for the occasion with blooms of hydrangeas, dahlias and roses.

With cohostesses Novella Nicholson, Kathryn Walker, and Connie Service, Bernice planned an attractive Bicentennial

Barracudas lose

In a "Tri-Dual" meet at Carmel, the Barracudas hosted the Gilroy Gators and the Homeward Pool Team of the De Anza Swim Club. The heretofore undefeated Carmel Barracuda swimmers dropped their first league dual meet in four years on Saturday to an unbeaten Gilroy Gators Club, 359.5 to 387.5, while swamping the travelling De Anza Club, 454-187.

Head Coach Larry Challis commends the coaches, Rich Holine, Dana Whitesides, and Chaco Mohler, and the swimmers on their record-breaking performances on Saturday. The 13-14 girls' Free Relay team of Stacey Hicks, Maureen Falge, Suzy Hermanson, and Pam Gayman shattered a record that had held since 1963, following the record-breaking performance of Stacey, Maureen, Suzy and Beth Allard in the 200 Medley Relay. Nancy Parsons set a new record in the 15-18 100 free stroke and Kathy Walthour in the 15-18 100 breast stroke. For the boys, Adam Sherburne equalled his record in the 13-14 100 backstroke and the 15-18 team of Jeff Mink, Andy Fitton, Rogan Hatton, and Ron Gayman set a new record in the 200 free relay.

The Monterey County Fair Horse Show is an extravaganza which has very little to do with horses. It also has very little to do with local taxpayers who are taxed for county fairs. It has very little to do with encouraging local agriculture or domestic sciences which are the reasons that taxpayers are taxed for county fairs. What it has to do with is money.

The County Fair Horse Show makes a great deal of money for which I doubt you'll ever see a public accounting. The exhibitors pay the highest entry fees of any horse show in the Central Coast area. They pay for their stalls, bedding, feed, and groom's accomodations if needed and, the audience pays well to watch the show.

The audience is mainly cityfolks who know very little about horses. They think the foo-fa-raw slung at them by the scoopful is just beautiful. Bread and circuses keep the populace happy.

When horselovers go it's usually not to see the horses. The main fun is to go with a group of fellow horselovers in order to hiss the bad guys and deplore the terrible things done to horses for money.

There are some high points however. One of them is Saturday Night at the Horse Show. Over the years this has become Monterey's version of opening night at the opera.

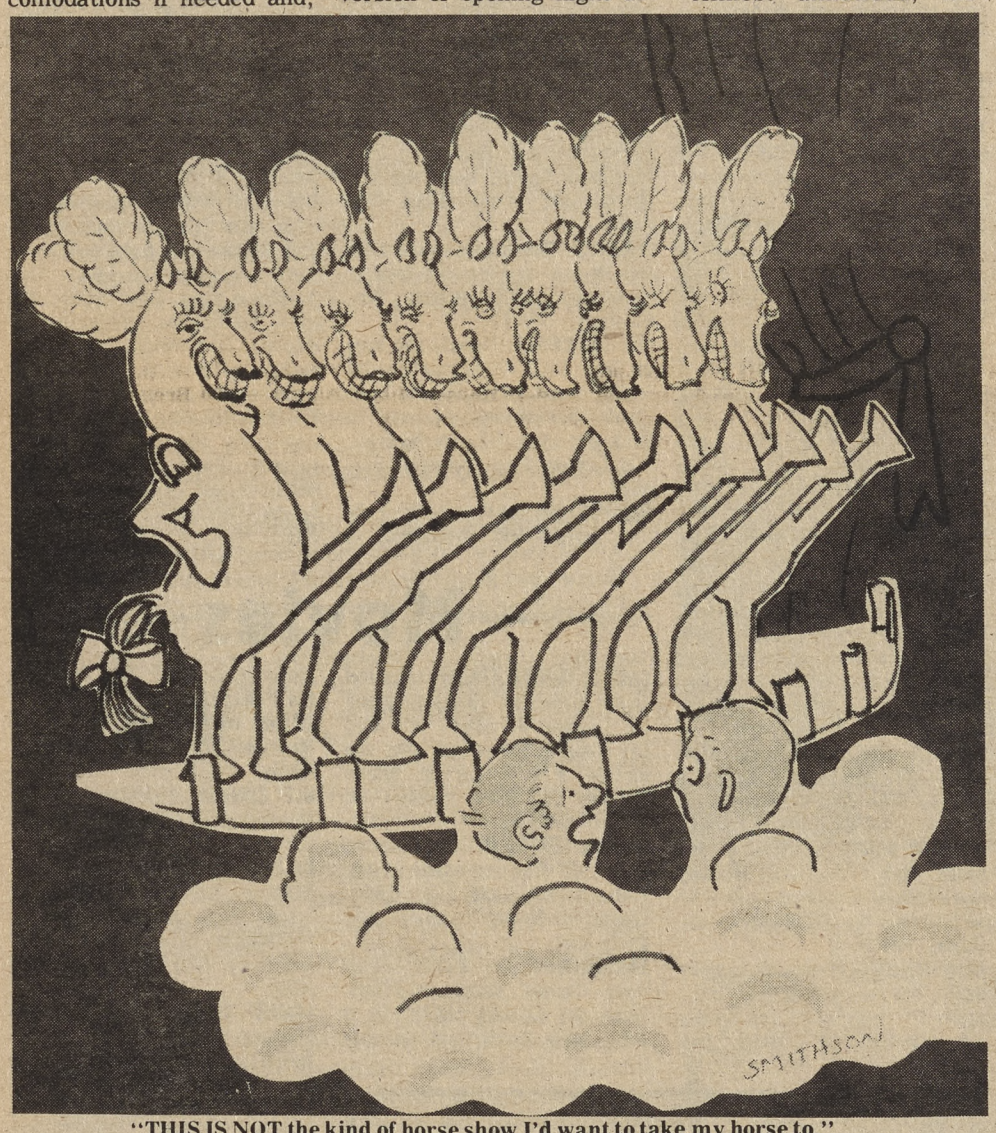

Saturday night, the final performance of the horse show, features the stake classes for which interesting eliminations have gone on all week. Some of the best horsemanship takes place during unattended morning classes in which contestants in the stake classes do their real work. The Saturday night classes are a perfunctory summary and a ritual presentation of trophies and picture taking. Applause, everyone, the photographer has thrown his hanky and taken another picture!

The real star of Saturday night is the audience — and the clotheshorse. The box holders are Carmel Valley almost to a woman. The mood is funky-elegant. Each time the ring is dragged, groups squeeze along the aisle behind the boxes to visit one another. Standees rotate slowly, peering for their friends. Hand signals are flashed across the ring.

Almost unnoticed, the Tennessee Walkers glide, nodding spangled ribbons in their manes which do not distract attention as is hoped from the six-inch leaden shoes and steel chains around their ankles.

The stock horse gets more attention as there are more horsemen in the audience who know that you do not get a sliding stop by pulling on the reins. Good sliders get a cowboy cheer from many who never drink at the No Name Bar. Politely overlooked is the poor horse who keeps ducking his head to his chest in remembrance of the many times he's been slugged over the crest with a weighted bat.

Where the real money is, though, comes as the last event of the the evening. The Puissance Jumping class starts the horses over a big demanding jump course. Those that clean it go on to jump a shorter, bigger series of jumps. Finally it gets down to one spread fence and the solid "brick" wall the height of which is raised at each jump off until only one horse can clear it. The organist adds to the suspense by playing theme music for each horse as it re-enters the arena for its next try. When the wall reaches six foot six inches the ring crew, who are not midgets but brawny young men, must reach high above their heads to assemble the wooden "bricks". When the wall reaches six foot nine inches, those members of the audience who have been patronizing the Hunt Club bar all evening are about ready to Pui in their ssance. - Suspense, glamor, booze, status, all mixed with the fragrance of horse pucky. Let Kansas City have the Republicans...we've got a better show here.

"THIS IS NOT the kind of horse show I'd want to take my horse to."

Impressionists exhibited

Renoir, Mary Cassatt and Winslow Homer original paintings are included in the collection of famed French and American Impressionists currently on exhibit at the new Pebble Beach branch of the Galerie De Tours.

The works include pieces by such world-renowned names as George Bellows (1882-1925), William Merritt Chase (1849-1916), William Glackens (1870-1938), Childe Hassam (1859-1935), Winslow Homer (1836-1910), Robert Henri (1865-1929), Auguste Renoir (1841-1919) and John Singer Sargent (1859-1924) among others.

The Galerie De Tours, which is sponsoring the show, is the oldest private gallery in Carmel, and over the years since its founding has added branches in San Francisco, Beverly Hills and now Pebble Beach, in addition to a second exhibition location in Carmel itself.

The Mary Cassatt painting "La Lecture," which is being presented, has a long history, having been shown at the Corcoran Museum in Washington, D.C., at the City Art Museum in St. Louis and at Durand-Ruel in Paris.

The Auguste Renoir work was done in 1892 and has been shown at exhibitions of his work in both Paris and New York. Entitled "Two Women in a Landscape," it has the soft resonating colors that made Renoir so famous.

One of the George Bellows paintings "Emma In An Orchard" was featured in a show at the Gallery of Modern Art in New York in 1966. It was originally painted in Camden, Maine in 1916.

Taken from a historical point of view, the works being shown for the opening of the new Pebble Beach branch of the Galerie De Tours will afford students and art scholars on the Peninsula as well as the lay public at large, an opportunity to see examples of major French and American Impressionist painting from the turn of the century.

"LA LECTURE" by Mary Cassatt, Impressionist painter of the 19th century, is part of an exhibit of French and American Impressionists at the new Pebble Beach Gallery of the Galerie de Tours.

Peace visions exhibit to open

The Marjorie Evans Gallery in the Sunset Community and Cultural Center, announces the opening of "Vision of Peace in Painting," an exhibition of 42 children's paintings on the subject of peace and friendship. It will be on display from Aug. 14 through Sept. 12.

The paintings, created by Arab and Jewish children (ages 9-15), are the result of a pilot art project originated in 1967 by Moshe Tamir, director of the Israel's Ministry of Education and Culture. First shown in Jerusalem, these paintings were part of an exhibit shown at the Junior Museum of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. The exhibit is currently touring the United States and Canada under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution, and it is sponsored by the International Cultural Centers for Youth.

Inspiration for the exhibition came in 1967, shortly after the Six Day War in the Middle East when 1,000 Arab and Jewish children from both sides of the border were brought together and invited to paint on the subject of peace. With their paint pots and brushes as their only common "language," the children produced hundreds of paintings.

The Hatchcover is currently the spotlight on Wednesday through Saturday evenings for what could prove to be an interesting experiment in the area of folk music. The group's name is Osprey and they rely on the fine voices of Laurie Weber and Katherine Reclusada as well as the intricate picking of Bryan Diamond on guitar and occasional dulcimer.

Local folks will pick up on this talented trio quickly because their background is generously speckled with gigs at many nightspots in the area but the idea is to forget about the past and move on to a hopefully unique sound.

Kathy says it best. "We really want to do something different and pack this place. And we want folks to get used to our songs so that they'll ask for them and relate them to Osprey."

Osprey is presently in an embryonic stage with a potential to branch out in many direction. For instance, the presence of the dulcimer leaves many musical avenues open. "It's only a small part of a song," condedes Diamond, "but the sound of a dulcimer blending with Kathy's guitar is beautiful."

Another part of the act that is pleasing to the ear is the use of a cappella for the folk standard "Time Is On The Run." Most groups have trouble with pacing and tuning when they appear together for the first time yet Osprey's ability to have such musical abilities worked into the act during their premiere week is a tribute to their professionalism and a positive portent of things to come.

Things to come include the public announcement of a fine new member of the group very shortly. It will give Osprey that final touch that is needed to branch away from the local scene and on to better things.

Most of the publicity surrounding the Jolly Rogue since its closing due to a fire in late June has been the quick rebuilding of the restaurant that will result in the doors reopening sometime in September. As usual, the plight of the entertainers is secondary.

It is because of the prevailing attitude among club owners on the Peninsula that good acts are a dime a dozen that I'm glad to pass the word that Adrienne and Chuck McDonnell — otherwise known as Skybird — are back on a local stage for the first time since the Rogue fire.

Unable to find work in the immediate Monterey area, our Salinas neighbors now have the good fortune of catching these fine folk at the Blue Boar on Main Street. The Blue Boar is the former Sherwood Gardens.

"We'll be playing a lot of the standards that our regulars at the Rogue liked to hear," explained Chuck, "and we hope the word will get around that we're playing again." Believe me, it's worth the twenty-minute jaunt to Salinas to catch Chuck's free flowing jazz style and Adrienne's sexy vocal style. You'll find them on the Blue Boar stage Tuesday through Saturday evenings. Salinas' gain is Monterey's loss. I hope the Rogue folk will rehire Skybird so that their reopening is truly a memorable one.

At press time, the radio and TV ratings had not been officially released but the scuttlebut from usually reliable sources indicates that teenybopper outlet KDON had the overall number one ratings and that fewer folk overall were watching local TV news on either channel 8 or 46. Verification and explaination of the ratings should be in next week's column... The name of Randy Reinstedt's new book is "Tales, Treasures and Pirates of Old Monterey" and it should be rolling off the presses within the week...

Organist Dick Duane is an unusual fellow. "I enjoy competition here on the Row. I think it's great that they've added Len Dixon over at the Captain's Cove and J. Scott Smith at the Outrigger. It means more folks will circulate in the area and come over to see me."

Duane has no reason to be scared of competition. He plays a fine subdued keyboard over at Willie Lum's China Row on Wednesday through Sunday evenings and has developed a small but steady group of local fans as a result of his stay at China Row which now spans over a year and a half.

Dick is no stranger to the Peninsula. He was one of the folks who introduced live music to Carmel Valley when he played with a jazz trio at the Buckeye. His many years in the business have made him aware of what folks want to hear and he actually keeps track of requests via the cards which folks in the China Row lounge can pass on to him.

Community Theatre

'Invalid' lacks polish, consistency

By SEAN McLEOD

Community theatre serves a valuable function, in being a forum specifically for amateur performers. But in assessing performance, there is a qualitative difference between the adjectives "amateur" and "amateurish."

"The Imaginary Invalid," the Community Theatre's current offering, is distinctly amateurish. There are good things about the show, but overall it lacks consistency and any semblance of polish.

The best element of the play is Moliere's original script. However, he wrote in an age of great systle and elegance — the earthiness notwithstanding — and without acting finesse and crisp pacing, the show goes a little flat.

Director Paul Ventura's modern adaptation would work quite well, in spite of internal improbabilities, if the actors were a little more deft. (Reading the program notes, one suspects that he started with some good theatrical sense, but succumbed to ponderous over-intellectualization.)

The classic story concerns the domestic tribulations of a dedicated hypochondriac who is wealthy enough to indulge himself and his doctors. Besides money and symptons (and excellent health!), he has a nubile daughter, a scheming wife, an outspoken sister, and an impudent maid. Could a gentleman be more afflicted?

Alan Coppens is fine as Morgan, the "invalid." He is ridiculous because of the character and situation, but the role is not basically a comic one. But Coppens does well as the central "straight man."

Ellen Sherman as Toinette, the maid, is also quite good. She is pretty and perky and usually in control. She can also "throw away" a good line in order to obtain maximum value from it.

Angelo Bourdon as Tyrone, Angel's lover, does some fine comic acting, both verbal and physical. Jean Scholefield as Madge, Morgan's sister (brother in the original — the change improves the play) gives an extra shot of needed energy to the show. However, her garish makeup and wig contradict her function as the voice of reason in the play.

Sandy Gallagher as Angel, Morgan's daughter, is competent but too serious. Both she and Mirjana Tomashevic, who plays the stepmother, would be more convincing if they enjoyed themselves in the roles. (The intensity and flatness were more than just opening-night nerves.)

Ultimately, it is the Grotesques who save the show. Bob Lester plays two different roles with hilarious command of line and gesture. He is so outstanding that the other performers suffer by comparison — which isn't much help to the rest of the show.

Donnan Jeffers as Elmer, the young doctor to whom Morgan has promised Angel, also does an excellent job with his ludicrous caricature.

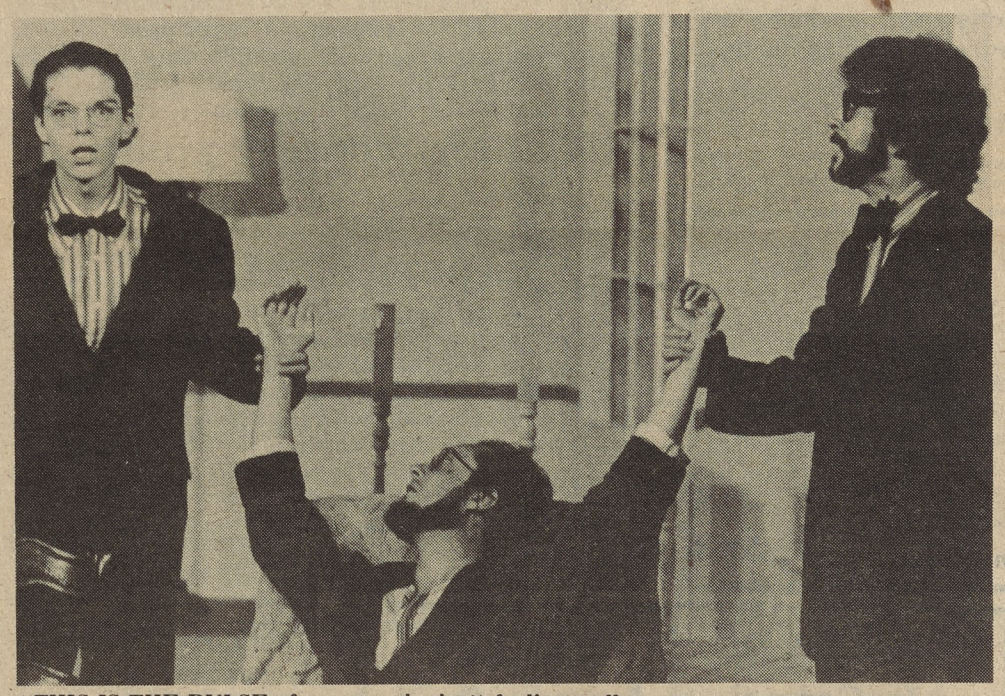

Alfredo Valdez as Trustworthy, the stepmother's "lawyer," does a charmingly villainous impression. Wearing his other hat, Valdez has produced an attractive and appropriate setting for the play.

Unfortunately, the director has not used it well: much of the important action is blocked downstage in the semi-darkness, too close to the audience, while the upstage arena is under-used. The show would look better if the playing area were more compact but judiciously utilized.

The costumes of Jeanne Graham and Lucille Henry are startling but appropriate. Elmer's suit, in particular, is a character in its own right.

One element of the play which suffers from the updating is the "medical" aspect. It is still possible, perhaps even worthwhile, to make fun of doctors — but the specific targets have changed considerably since the 17th century. Also, the "bathroom humor" does not transpose well; it is closer to vulgarity than to earthiness.

"The Imaginary Invalid" plays on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. It is a light and passably entertaining evening.

"THIS IS THE PULSE of a man who isn't feeling well," says young Elmer Gravestone (Donnan Jeffers) to "The Imaginary Invalid" (Alan Coppens) as Dr. Gravestone (Bob Lester) looks on. The show is playing through Sept. 4 at the Community Theatre.

setting. Guests were seated at tables set with red cloths, white place mats and red and blue petunias.

Two new canasta players, Velma List and Elsie Daniels, and a new bridge player, Margaret Cushman were welcomed to the group.

The high awards in bridge went to Connie Service and Dorothy Chappell and for canasta to Jean De Haas and Vera Stokes.

Winners of the table prizes were: Esther Whitcomb, Irma Bolgard, Bernice Leoni, Ruth Wade, Catherine Harriman, Dorothy Chappell, Barbara Robbins, Jean De Haas, Vera Stokes and Marie Rich.

Boronda awards 4-H-ers home

Boronda 4-H Club community leader Mrs. Oliver White presented awards following the joint family barbecue held recently by the Boronda and Buckeye 4-H clubs, at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

A gold star was presented to Bill Brandt and bronze stars to Sharon Collins, Liz Weiss and Danny Weiss.

A woodworking medal was awarded to Ron Gayman and a medal for Rabbits to Pam Gayman. Information of the affair was provided by Boronda's Winifred Reuter.

Fire rookies

Lieutenant Kalani Fonseca who is also training officer for the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department, currently has a full scale program underway for the eight rookies recently welcomed into the department.

Among the probationers is David Cummings, son of assistant chief Don Cummings, a department veteran. Others in training include John Shaeffer, Gary Tate, Mike Viljoen, Jerry Kurz, Ken Haff, Pete Randall and Bill Owen.

Cancer recovery group

"A feeling — the strongest ever experienced..." was a Carmel Valley Cancer-recovery patient's descriptive praise of the new Cancer Recovery Group now meeting each Wednesday from 3:30-5:00 in the Carmel Presbyterian Church at Junipero and Ocean in Carmel.

Attended by doctors, nurses, ministers, patients barely out of the hospital, those who have been cured for years — and sometimes their families — the group is in its formative stages organized by a Monterey physician to lend support to those involved with those who have developed cancer.

The organizers feel that the potential is limitless and are working on a research center which will provide peer counselling, group therapy, a husband and wife group and child counselling.

The center would also hold information such as that needed recently when an elderly Carmel Valley resident came home from the hospital and was in need of someone to assist with meals, managing the household, and patient care on a temporary basis.

If you know of anyone who would benifit from the Wednesday sessions, won't you tell them that they are invited to take advantage of the open meetings. The admission is free.

Kiwanis Toro Park

Members and families of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club were among the guests enjoying barbecued steaks and corn on the cob at the picnic Sunday, in the Buckeye area of Toro Park, for surrounding clubs sponsored by the Cannery Row Kiwanis.

Highlight of the afternoon was a baseball game with teams made up of all ages, both sexes, and NO scorekeeper — so both teams were determined winners!

Obituary

Mrs. Frankie E. Little, 87, mother of Carmel Valley resident Doris E. Bundgard and a frequent visitor to the Valley died Sunday, Aug. 8 in Sacramento.

Mrs. Little was a native of San Francisco and the widow of Matthew A. Little. She is also survived by sons Matthew A. Little Jr. of Menlo Park; James J. Little of San Francisco; a daughter, Elizabeth McGilvray of Sacramento; 12 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Memorial services were held in Sacramento on Tuesday. Contributions may be made to the donor's favorite charity.
